

Summary of Discovery Projects Applications for Funding to Commence in 2006

New South Wales

Charles Sturt University

DP0663901 Mr MP Anstey

Approved Project Title The Grammar of Biblical Hebrew: Functional and Corpus Analyses

2006 : $80,000

2007 : $65,000

2008 : $75,000

2009 : $75,000

Primary RFCD 3802 LINGUISTICS

APD Mr MP Anstey

Administering Institution Charles Sturt University

Project Summary

The project promotes original, innovative research in Australia into Biblical Hebrew linguistics. Advancement in the knowledge of linguistics increases our understanding of language and its central role in cognition, social interaction, and culture. Biblical Hebrew is the language of the Hebrew Bible, a text sacred to Judaism and Christianity, and of interest to the wider Australian public. The Hebrew Bible is inextricably bound to these two religious traditions that continue to influence substantially Australian society and societies across the world. This project furthers Australia's capacity to contribute to the vital task of interpreting the Hebrew Bible in contemporary, responsible ways and translating it into the world's languages.

DP0666699 Dr KJ Horton

Approved Project Title Collective Obligations and Partial Compliance

2006 : $74,340

2007 : $74,340

2008 : $74,340

Primary RFCD 4401 PHILOSOPHY

APD Dr KJ Horton

Administering Institution Charles Sturt University

Project Summary

The research I would conduct is likely to have considerable impact at both the national and international level. Despite the lack of systematic work on the issues my projects tackles, the importance of those issues is now widely recognized, and so work on them is likely to be widely noted and discussed. In addition, the research will have important implications for a number of the most prominent issues in contemporary life in Australia, such as issues concerning refugees, relations with the aboriginal community, and international aid.